

Swine Influenza and your business

It now seems that we are on track for Swine Influenza in this country. Fortunately, we have a little time to put things in place to lessen the impact.

At the moment we do not know how serious this will turn out to be or how many people will be taken ill, but now is the time to work out how your business will get through the difficulties this could cause - this will be your business continuity plan. The main issues to look at will be coping with staff shortages and difficulties with suppliers etc who may be facing similar problems.

If you do not have any business continuity plans in place then visit http://www.wealdenbusinesshelp.org.uk/business_practice/BusinessContinuity.aspx for links to the best advice available.
